FIVE MORE MEN TO ENTER ARMY ON FEBRUARY 20

Official notice from Gilson D. Light, state director of selective service, calling for five white men on February 12 and one Negro on February 20, was received Saturday by the local Selective Service board.

Volunteers will make up most, if not all, of the quota. Selective Service officials believe, with the county's volunteer list now standing at 52. The volunteers will be sent to Fort Hayes, Columbus, by bus.

Meanwhile the local Selective Service board is preparing to send its second quota of 34 men to Fort Hayes on February 6.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25 — Major problems confronting the Selective Service officials were believed ironed out today following a conference between Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, deputy director of selective service in the United States, and Adj. Gen. Gilson D. Light, draft chief in Ohio. General Hershey, a former military instructor at Ohio State University, is making a tour of the country to establish personal contact with officers administering the selective service program. State headquarters announced that of the 851,152 Ohioans registered.

MUSSOLINI, his African army smashed by the British and his Albanian army in retreat from the Anglo-Greek forces, is reported to have asked for help from his Axis partner, Hitler, in their recent conference. This map shows how Hitler may come to the aid. German troops are concentrating in the Balkans, ready to enter the Greek campaign, in which Nazi bombers already are participating, and Hitler is putting pressure on Spain and France in an effort to cripple Britain in the west. Arrows out of Egypt indicate the British advance. Others indicate Hitler's possible moves.

London Guessing At Reich's Move

Fifth Consecutive Night Of Rest Enjoyed; All-Out Offensive Against Isles Hinted

LONDON, Jan. 25—More than anything that has happened so far in this war, London's long respite from German night air raids had residents of the British capital guessing today.

For the fifth successive night, the sleep of Londoners was not disturbed by Nazi bombers. Other parts of Britain likewise were free from raids.

Today wildly fanciful conjectures were advanced as the capital sought to explain the reason for the "off-blitz"—as Londoners called it—but the only concrete explanation forthcoming was the fact that bad weather over the continent was partially responsible.

Usually well-informed theorists were equally divided into two schools of thought. The first theory was that Chancellor Hitler is resting his air force in preparation for a smashing new thrust, either against Britain or in the Mediterranean.

The second was that a water-logged mist shrouded the German airbases in France and the low countries and that snow blocked airfields in Germany and occupied Scandinavian territory. This and inclement conditions aloft were believed to have prevented sustained German night bombing operations during the last week.

The so-called "invasion school of thought" naturally took the grimest possible view of the absence of air attacks, predicting Hitler is (Continued on Page Eight)

MRS. MARGARET REID DIES AT 92; SERVICE MONDAY

Mrs. Margaret Reid, 92, a native of Hocking County, but a resident of Pickaway County for many years, died Saturday at 3 a. m. at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Cave, 720 South Court Street. Complications after illness of seven years caused death.

Mrs. Reid was born December 27, 1848, a daughter of Levi and Margaret Bowsher. She married Jacob Reid April 19, 1867, her husband dying July 23, 1922.

FAIRFIELD MAN, WIFE ABDUCTED BY B. I. S. YOUTHS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25 — Auto theft charges were filed in Columbus today against two 'teen-age Cleveland escapees from the Lancaster Reformatory who assertedly blazed a trail of crime across central Ohio before their capture at Mt. Vernon by state highway patrolmen.

The youths, Jack Barber, 18-year-old Negro, and Thomas Jones, also 18, ran away from a discipline squad at the institution yesterday afternoon.

Shortly afterward, according to officials at the industrial school, they kidnaped a Lancaster couple, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hedges, at Revenge, a Fairfield County hill village about 10 miles south of Lancaster.

The Hedges had stopped at a crossroads store, and the boys hid in the rear seat until the couple had returned. Then one of them assertedly pressed a fountain pen, stolen from the glove compartment of the car, against Hedges' neck, told him it was a gun, and forced him to drive to Columbus. There they fled from the Hedges' car, stole another belonging to Harold Morgan, Columbus, and drove off towards Mt. Vernon where they were taken into custody by Highway Patrolmen.

AUTO, BUS IN CRASH

HILLSBORO, Jan. 25 — Three persons were recovering today from minor injuries received when the auto in which they were riding was in a collision with a Dayton-to-Portsmouth bus on icy route 124, four miles east of Hillsboro. The bus driver and his eight passengers escaped unhurt.

PRECEDENT SET BY ROOSEVELT

President Goes To Sea To Welcome Lord Halifax

OBSERVERS HOME

King George V Must Leave Shores Of U. S. Soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—Lord Halifax presided over the British embassy today following an unprecedented gesture on the part of President Roosevelt which could only be interpreted as a worldwide notice that the United States was intent on "all out" aid to the British Empire.

Quite dramatically, the new ambassador from London and his lady had been taken from England's newest battleship and conveyed into Washington by the President—irrespective of the protocol rule that a chief of state always waits for a diplomatic envoy to call on him.

Somewhere in Chesapeake Bay Britain's newest 35,000-ton man of war—the King George V—was maneuvering about, quite possibly to cruise out and engage in the bitter naval warfare which is taking heavy toll of shipping in both North and South Atlantic waters. International law and the American Neutrality Act require the warship to leave 24 hours after its arrival.

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear how the sympathies of his administration stood when he motored down to Annapolis, Md., in the rain yesterday and took the new English ambassador off the King George and back to the Massachusetts Avenue embassy.

Observers Return

A further accent in the highly-emphasized relationship between Washington and London was written when an American brigadier general and an American rear admiral, fresh from observation of Germany's terrific attack on the British Isles, also disembarked from the warship that ran Halifax safely through the trouble zone.

Brig. Gen. Raymond E. Lee and Rear Admiral R. L. Gormley, who headed a mission to London, slipped unobtrusively off the British battleship and rushed into Washington to report.

World attention centered primarily, however, on Mr. Roosevelt's semi-secret move in motoring to Annapolis and there boarding his yacht Potomac to greet and take Lord and Lady Halifax from the British battleship that literally thumbed its nose at the (Continued on Page Eight)

SIX RIFLE TEAMS FORM AT FRIDAY EVE MEETING

Members of the Pickaway Rifle and Pistol Club met at the rifle range Friday evening, organized teams and scheduled contests for next week.

Six teams already have been organized, President James Shea said, and others are expected as the program gets under way. A service station team, a Ralston Purina team, a Circleville Herald team, a grocers' team, an Allis-Chalmers team and an American Legion team were organized at the meeting.

First contest will be held at the range Tuesday at 8 p. m. when the Ralston-Purina will shoot against the Legion. On Wednesday night Allis-Chalmers will compete with the Circleville Herald and on Friday night, the service station team and the grocers will compete.

The Legion team has not yet been completed and anyone interested in joining the team should contact Mr. Shea.

UNCLE SAM JUGGLES ROCKEFELLER TO TRIO OF TRAINING CENTERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 — Private Winthrop Rockefeller is getting plenty of action in his first few days in the Army.

The 28-year-old son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., today was ready to take up his duties at Plattsburg, N. Y., after two transfers within the last 24 hours.

Rockefeller, a Selective Service volunteer, went to Fort Dix, N. J., on Wednesday. Yesterday, along with a dozen other draftees, he was driven to Fort Jay, Governor's Island, N. Y., for duty with the 518th Military Police Battalion.

After a few hours there, Rockefeller, at his own request, was transferred to Plattsburg, where he underwent one month of training at his own expense last summer under the special Citizens' Military Training program.

BRITISH MENACE NEW DISTRICTS

Bomba, Derna And Bengazi Next; Selassie's Natives Drive For Addis Ababa

CAIRO, Jan. 25—Giving retreating Italian forces no opportunity to form new defense lines, British mechanized forces roared across the Libyan desert today west of captured Tobruk and menaced the Fascist bases of Bomba, Derna and far-off Bengazi.

Officials in Cairo said the British advance was continuing with "incredible speed" and that Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani was not even given a chance to reorganizing his advance patrols. The main British push has now progressed beyond Gazala and is threatening Bomba and Derna and is aimed also at Bengazi, it was stated.

Simultaneously Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie was reported launching a "war of liberation" against Italy in his Italian-held domain.

Hundreds of miles inside his African domain, Selassie began directing his new forces in the first stages of the long-anticipated drive against Ethiopia's Fascist conquerors, according to advices received in Cairo.

GAME OPERATORS WILL "LEGALIZE" PINBALL DEVICES

Following announcement by local law enforcement officers Friday that all gaming devices, including pinball machines, cigarette slot machines, punch boards and other devices except merchandise vending machines should be out of public establishments in Circleville and Pickaway County by Monday, owners of machines set about Saturday making pinball machines "legal."

Eliminating the free game from pinball machines classed them as non-gaming devices, according to the Ohio law, city police officers stated Saturday, and with such action taken pinball machines in the city will be not be disturbed. It is estimated there are about a dozen such machines in the city. Sheriff's officers likewise announced that if gaming machines in the county were made legal by eliminating chances, the machines could not be confiscated.

MANY JEWS MASSACRED IN ROMANIAN UPRISING

BUDAPEST, Jan. 25—Hundreds of Jews were massacred in Bucharest during the height of the reports received in Budapest said today. All Jewish shops in the Romanian capital were reported pillaged and demolished by the insurgents.

Chief Of Radical Group Takes Refuge In Home Of Organization

SOFIA, Jan. 25—The Romanian government today closed its Bulgarian and Soviet frontiers to prevent Iron Guardists escaping from a mass round-up of insurgents.

Many Romanian rebels were arrested at the borders, it was reported, while in provincial towns and cities Romanian troops were seizing thousands of suspects.

Refugees arriving in Sofia from Romania said they saw hundreds of corpses beside the roads—mostly bodies of slain Jews.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 25—Accused of organizing the bloody revolt against Romanian Premier Ion Antonescu's regime, which brought death to some 6,000 persons, Vice Premier Horia Sima took refuge today in the Bucharest "green house," headquarters of the Iron Guardists.

Issuing a warrant for Sima's arrest, Antonescu deposed the vice premier as leader of the Iron Guard and assumed that role himself. Sima was charged with having "double-crossed" the government.

But because the green house contains the tomb of the "martyred" Iron Guardist, Corneliu Codrescu—a national shrine—the government was not prepared to order troops to storm the building to capture Sima.

ATHENS—The Greek high command today reported the capture of large quantities of Italian war material and many prisoners following new Greek advances in the coastal district south of Valona and in the Klisura-Tepelini sector. Feature of the advance was defeat of an entire Italian regiment by a lone Greek army battalion. Reports from the front said the Fascist regiment was shot to ribbons after it had failed in a counter-attack on a position held by a Greek battalion.

LONDON—Despite bad flying weather, a small squadron of Royal Air Force bombers raided the German-held French naval base of Lorient during the night, the Air Ministry announced today.

Snow, Ice Stay; Highway Crews Keep In Action

Cloudy weather with snow or rain Sunday and lower temperatures Sunday night was the weatherman's prediction for Circleville and vicinity Saturday, as below-freezing temperatures refused to remove the ice and snow from city streets and neighboring highways.

State highway crews sent out at 4 a. m. Friday by a three inch snow which made roads slippery, continued to spread cinders and calcium on hills and curves Saturday, as they prepared the highways for week end traffic.

Route 23 south of Circleville is clear, the highway department reports, while north of the city the road is slippery. Route 22 east is clear, but is slippery west of Circleville, especially in the vicinity of New Holland. Ice is reported on the curves of Route 104 in the vicinity of Commercial Point, with highway officials reporting the OCC highway around Mt. Sterling icy. Streets in the city are in

In Nazi Hands?

FRITZ Thyssen, former German industrialist and once reputed to be the principal financial support of the Nazi movement, is reported by London quarters now to be in the hands of the German Gestapo. The report said Thyssen and his wife were arrested at Cannes by French police, taken to German-occupied France and placed in custody of German secret police.

JAIL REBELLION BREAKS OUT IN CLARK COUNTY

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 25—The two alleged ring-leaders of a revolt of 29 prisoners, who rebelled against what they termed "poor food," were held in solitary confinement in the Clark County jail today after three extra squads of police subdued the revolt with tear gas grenades.

The rebellion in the first floor cell block lasted nearly two hours. Sheriff Niles E. Young said the disorder started when he placed the 29 prisoners on a bread and coffee diet after they exhibited signs of becoming unruly.

All available Springfield policemen were called to bring out the two alleged ring-leaders—Harold VanHook, 19, charged with burglary, and James Blanchard, 18, charged with auto theft. Both are awaiting grand jury action.

The prisoners complained because "the applesauce was too thin and the spaghetti too thick." Sheriff Young called the complaints "ridiculous."

After the tear gas grenades cleared the cells, investigating officers found a club and a butcher knife secreted in the cell-block. The others of the 61 prisoners made no attempt to join in the revolt.

YOUTH GETS CONTRACT, THEN ORDER FOR ARMY

DETROIT, Jan. 25 — Twenty-three-year old Charles J. Kalish was a happy young man the other day when he was offered a 20-week contract at $200 a week to appear in a radio serial.

Today, Kalish was a sad young man as he boarded a train for Fort Custer, Mich., to serve a year in the army under the Selective Service act. The order to report for duty arrived a few hours after the contract.

EX-ENVOY CALLS ON CONGRESS TO VOTE AID BILL

90 Percent Of World To Be Against America In Case Of Axis Victory

PANAMA DANGER CITED

Witness In House Hearing Fears Fleet May Be Bottled Up

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 — William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to France, today warned congress that unless the United States "buys time" to arm by aiding Britain, this nation will find "ninety percent of the human race organized both militarily and economically against us" by the dictators.

Appearing before the House Foreign Affairs Committee to make the administration's reply to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Bullitt declared flatly that axis domination of the world will leave the Western Hemisphere a mere "mutilated stump" on a totalitarian globe with the result that this nation will be forced to adopt a military form of government for years to come.

The United States, he said, is determined not to go to war, and although everyone realizes that the "most certain way to insure against risk of British defeat would be for us to go to war," the program of aid to Britain has these two limits:

"First, we will not declare war; "Second, we will not ourselves initiate military or naval hostilities."

Bullitt, a suave, veteran diplomat who, as a close aide to President Woodrow Wilson helped form that chief executive's famed "15 points" after the World War made 28 points for aiding Britain in his own statement today.

Unlimited Aid Sought
On the point of possible U. S. involvement, he was most emphatic on this nation staying out of war, but he made it unmistakably clear that he believes that virtually unlimited aid must be given Britain to preserve our own interests.

He said: "We can not appease Germany. It is impossible to appease the unappeasable. And the Western Hemisphere is the juiciest morsel before the dictators."

"We are not prepared today to meet an attack by the totalitarian states that are leagued against us. We must buy time in which to prepare."

"We can buy that time only by making certain that the British fleet will continue to hold the totalitarian forces in Europe while our fleet watches in the Pacific."

"We can diminish the danger to ourselves only by supplying promptly to the British and the other states that are now holding the totalitarian war machines away from our shores every material, munition, and arm that they need."

"It is so greatly to the advantage of the totalitarian states to have us stay out of war while they are attempting to conquer Great Britain, Greece and China that no matter how much and we furnish and no matter what form that aid may take, the dictators will hesitate to declare war on us unless they have first conquered Great Britain. EDISON WEIGHS DEMAND FOR RETURN OF BURNS

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 25—Gov. Charles Edison today was making a "careful study" of a formal demand by Georgia for the extradition of Robert Elliott Burns, author of "I Am A Fugitive From A Chain Gang."

Burns, who escaped from a chain gang after serving part of a term for a 1922 Atlanta holdup, has established a home in New Jersey where he lives with his wife and two children.

In 1932, Gov. A. Harry Moore refused a Georgia request for Burns' extradition because of the latter's exemplary conduct in the state.

Tigers Drop SCO Game, 30 to 27, To Hillsboro 5

Half-Time Margin Of Five Points Wiped Out By Indians In Rough Contest; 37 Fouls Called, Four Boys Ousted From Play

Circleville High Tigers lost a slam-bang South Central Ohio League basketball game Friday night to Hillsboro's Indians, 30-27, the contest being one of the hardest-fought and roughest played on the C.A.C. hardwood for a long while.

Inability to hold a five point edge enjoyed at the end of the first half cost the ball game, the Tigers playing their most brilliant ball of the season in the second quarter to come from behind 10-5, the score at the end of the first quarter, to take a 16-11 edge at the intermission.

BIG LOM STANDS FIRM; JOOST ASKS BIGGER SALARY

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.—Warren Giles, president of the Cincinnati world champion baseball club, was confronted with double contract trouble in the San Francisco bay region today.

At his Oakland home, Ernie Lombardi, broad-shouldered veteran catcher, continued his holdout for more money from the Reds after rejecting a second contract. He said he was still demanding restoration of a $6,000 cut in his 1940 salary.

In San Francisco Eddie Joost, utility infielder now slated for a regular shortstop post, said he also returned his contract unsigned, but declined to be classified as a hold-out. Joost said the proffered part assured him of a $2,000 raise, but he expressed confidence that further negotiations with Giles would yield a higher 1941 salary.

Lombardi said his second contract called for the same terms as the first. However, attached to the last one was a note from Giles stating: "Better sign it, Ernie."

Both players explained they were forbidden to reveal their salaries.

Lombardi, more talkative of the two, discussed Cincinnati's chances of winning another World Series. Although not one to brag—or what he terms "pop off"—Ernie concluded that the Reds would find it difficult to repeat in 1941 without the "Schnozzle" behind the plate.

"I'm the club's No. 1 catcher," Lombardi said, "and in the last nine years with the Reds, I failed only twice to hit over .300."

UNCLE SAM BIG HELP TO OLDER DIAMOND STARS

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Uncle Sam probably doesn't realize how much he has already done to and for baseball through the automatic operation of his army draft.

Here are a few of the things accomplished by the old boy with the white whiskers:

(1) He has given hundreds of aged ball players a new lease on life.

(2) He has saved many of them from a downward plunge from the majors to the minors.

(3) He has increased their value to the ball clubs.

(4) And, by increasing their value, he has made some of them more stubborn hold-outs than they would be otherwise.

Every club is clinging to their fading stars because none of them knows how soon the younger players without dependents may be called to the colors.

The Yanks, for instance, would long since have made a deal for Frank Crosetti but they have hesitated to do so because they don't know how long they will be able to hold on to young Phil Rizzuto who was slated to take Frank's place at shortstop.

Naturally, Frank is well aware of the situation and his knowledge of conditions is not going to make him any easier to sign. He might have been asked to take a tremendous slash in salary in an ordinary year, but it is doubtful now if he will have to take much of a cut.

Very young stars who have a wife and a child or two dependent on them certainly are of more value than a young bachelor on whom Uncle Sam is quite likely to cast a covetous eye.

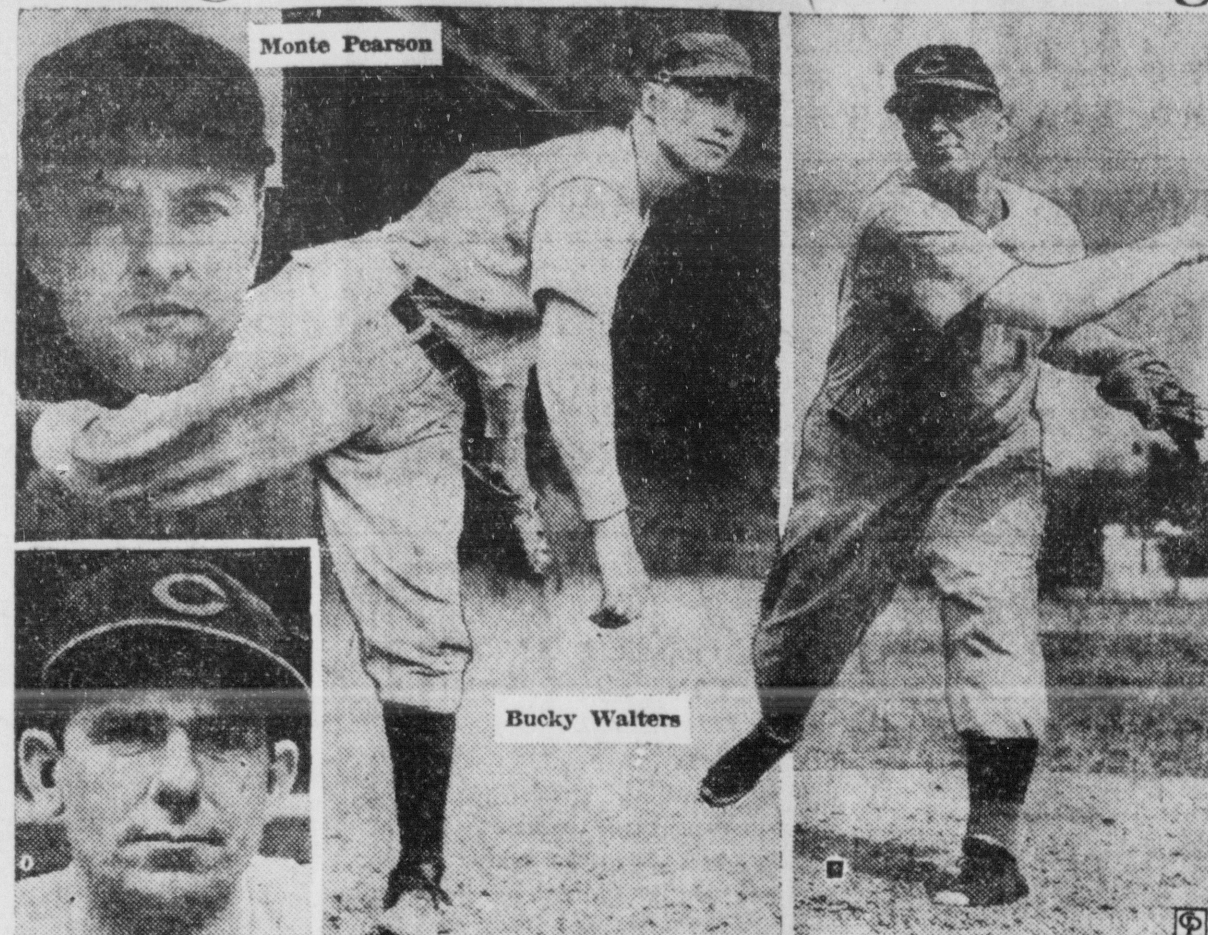

These young fellows, like the old timers, know their worth and they will not be backward in their demands.

It is worth noting that Charley Root, the 41 year old pitcher of the Cubs, already has returned his contract unsigned. Charley probably figures the Cubs will need him long before the summer is over, and he wants to get his while the getting is good.

The club owners realize that Uncle Sam is not only a boon to the hold-out brigade but they also are well aware that the old gentleman can wreck their club.

That is why it is futile to try to speculate on any club's pennant prospects before it is known just what stars Uncle Sam will call.

Pitching Should Give Reds Edge

Paul Derringer

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series on pre-training camp matchups of leading teams in the major leagues.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Can the Cincinnati Reds win their third pennant in succession in 1941?

Yes, seems to be the consensus of opinion of pre-campaign thinkers in the Baseball world, from President Ford Frick of the National league on down to the professional "guess" boys, the baseball writers.

The Chicago Cubs won three pennants in a row, copping the world champion the second and third time in the string. That was in the years 1906-7-8.

The New York Giants turned the trick in 1911-12-13, but failed to win the world's title in the post season classic. They did set the National league record later, however, by winning four flags in a row, 1921-24, inclusive, and two world series with it.

Pittsburgh is the only other National league club to take three loop titles in succession, the Pirates doing it in 1901-2-3, but with no world titles to boot.

Mound Staff Best

Most writers pick the Reds because of the personnel of the mound staff. It is agreed that the Queen City team has the best pitching staff in the National, one that even rivals the Cleveland Indians' hurling corps headed by Bobby Feller.

And the same prognosticators predict that Manager Bill McKenchie should do wonders with his recent acquisition, Monte Pearson, 31-year-old right-hander from the Yanks, the same fellow who hurled a two-hit shutout victory over the Reds in the 1939 world series.

It has been pointed out that McKenchie has a penchant for installing new and winning life into pitchers as soon as he works with them.

McKenchie Miracle Man

For example, contrast the records of the Reds' hurlers prior to Manager McKenchie's tenure at Cincy.

Paul Derringer, right-hander, won 10 games for the Reds in 1937. Since he has won 66 in three years.

Bucky Walters won four and lost eight when purchased from the Phils. Walters won 27 in 1939 in 22 last year.

Gene Thompson was a Class B hurler. He won 16 last year. Jim Turner won four and lost 11 with Boston in 1939. He won 14 for the Reds in 1940.

LANDIS ISSUES RULING ON DRAFTED ATHLETES

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Possible complications in the trading, sale or transfer of baseball players who may be drafted into the nation's armed forces, have been ironed out by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, it was revealed today.

In a bulletin to all Major League clubs concerning establishment of a National Defense service list, Landis rules on the status of such players and on the obligations of the clubs involved in transfer of such players.

A player, if drafted, will be placed on the list and will be considered in the same status as if he had been placed on the voluntarily retired list. Upon application, reinstatement in baseball's active list at the completion of his army service would be a routine matter. The ruling clarifies status for the player, and assures the club he will not be regarded as on its active list. It also straightens out club owners on their dealings with other owners.

John Fitzpatrick, of Los Angeles, 50-40 in 54 innings.

The best performance, however, was put on yesterday by another undefeated player, Welker Cochran of San Francisco, who outshot Joe Moriarty of Chicago, 50-24 in 32 innings—shortest game so far in the 2-week-old tournament.

five wins and 11 defeats while in the International league. He came to the Reds and pitched two no-hit no-run games in succession!

Pearson, once a Cleveland star, is a good pitcher when he is well. He won 19 for the Yanks in 1936, 16 in 1938 and 12 in 1939. He won but seven last year. Some claim Pearson can win if he tries hard enough.

Perhaps McKenchie will make Monte just that type of winning pitcher again and perhaps Pearson will, in turn, make the Reds a pennant contender.

New Help, Too

Several youngsters are available for pitching chores, also. They include Witt Guisa, Bob Logan, John Hutchings and Elmer Riddle. And then there's Whitey Moore, Tot

Pressnell and Joe Beggs, top-ranking stars when they're on.

The Reds have the pitchers and pitching wins pennants. Offensively, Cincinnati has several big guns, headed by the slugging first sacker, Frank McCormick. Defensively, the Reds stack up well with the other clubs in the loop.

While the clubs as a whole is a veteran team, several youngsters will be attempting to win places and stick. In this group are Dick West and Chuck Aleno and the Chicago Cubs' acquisitions, Bobby Mattick, infielder and Jimmy Gleason, outfielder.

The Cincinnati officials also are reported seeking another catcher to back up Big Ernie Lombardi, who frequently comes up with injuries that handicap his play.

Odds of 8 to 1 Prevail Against Burman Chance

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Two of the greatest upsets in recent heavyweight boxing history occurred in 1935 when Jim Braddock outpointed Max Baer for the championship and in 1936 when Max Schmeling knocked out Joe Louis before the latter won the title. Braddock and Schmeling were under dogs in those bouts at odds ranging from 7 to 1 to 12 to 1, depending on when the wagers did his wagering.

Putting it another way, neither Braddock against Baer or Schmeling against Louis was given even a remote chance.

All of which brings up this interesting topic one week in advance of the next presentation of Louis: what chance has Red Burman got to even make a fight of it. The odds are 8 to 1 against him at the moment and probably will be longer before next Friday evening.

About the only thing that may be said in behalf of Burman, and that isn't very flattering, is that some observers figure he may be both Louis for a few rounds, because of a weave and body punch. This is slightly more than could be said in advance for some of Louis' opponents, most of whom have been strictly push-overs and 10 to 1 shots. But it still isn't enough.

We don't think Burman will be stricken with fear, the malady which has whipped many of Louis' opponents for him. And we think the red-headed fellow will strive earnestly to do his best. However, he is only a fair boxer and puncher. Louis is a fine boxer and one of the best of all the great punchers. There's the difference.

His chances can't be rated even as good as Tony Galento's, for the latter is a great hitter when he can land, as he did in flooring Louis and making the champion grab and run, but he finally got his as all of Louis' opponents have, except Schmeling in their first fight. Schmeling got his in a return engagement.

WEST COAST ROOKIES ASK CUBS FOR BOOST

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—Baseball's prize rookies—Lou Novikoff and Lou Stringer—will respectfully ask the Chicago Cubs to hike the ante.

Sold last fall by the Los Angeles Angels to the Cubs for a reported combined price of $150,000, the former Angels are returning their proffered contracts unsigned.

Neither would say what the Cubs offered for their services. They emphasized, however, that they were not holdouts.

"We don't want to get off on the wrong foot with the Cubs' front office—that is neither of us want to be considered as fresh upstarts or unappreciative kids. But we feel that we are entitled to a larger salary than we have been offered," modestly explained Stringer.

THREE COUNTY TEAMS KEEP UP PACE ON COURT

Ashville, Pickaway, Deercreek Win Lopsided Victories On Hardwood

Three of the county's stronger teams, Ashville, Pickaway and Deercreek, remained in the upper brackets of the county standing Friday night, defeating Jackson, Scioto and Walnut, respectively, by lopsided scores.

Ashville, playing at home, piled up a score of 40 to 10 against the visiting Jackson five, with Swisher, Meahaffey, Forequer, Neff, Nance and Wilson contributing liberally to the score.

Ashville's reserves and Junior high teams also won games.

Deercreek playing on its own floor took two games from Walnut, the varsity winning 38 to 8 and the reserves 28 to 2. The varsity score at the half was 21-3 Deercreek.

Pickaway whipped Scioto's quintet 50 to 13, with Leist, Miller and Anderson making 43 points of the score. Scioto's reserves defeated Pickaway's second liners 26 to 12 and its Junior High team lost 5 to 34.

In a non-league event, New Holland came out on the big end of the scoring against Kingston by a tally of 38 to 23, while its reserves lost to the visiting team 22 to 10. Kingston crowded New Holland through the first three quarters of the game, and was behind 15 to 18 at the third quarter, but New Holland widened its lead in the final quarter by 12 points.

Announcement was made Saturday by C. A. Higley, Ashville superintendent, that the county tournament would be held in the Perry Township school, Atlanta, with Tom Vernia of Chillicothe and Jake Von Kanel of London as the officials.

HANDICAP HOLDS STAGE'S CENTER AT HIALEAH OVAL

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 25.—The Miami Beach Handicap, a struggle of one-mile and sixteenth, will hold the center of the stage today at Hialeah Park. Most of the probable starters are being pointed for the $10,000 McLennan and the $50,000 Widener classic and this battle will give their owners a fair line on their possibilities.

Eighteen have been mentioned as possible starters which means a fair sized field will trot out.

The weights are cleverly arranged by Racing Secretary Charles McLennan and run from Gino Rex with 120 pounds to Hugo Monte with 95. Between the pair there are a number of high class distance plodders.

Many Stings, which finished second in this stake last year, is one of the eligibles with 115 pounds and will have Wayne Wright on his back. Many Stings has started in a few sprint events just to sharpen his speed and he should have no excuses. Last season he carried off top honors by winning the McLennan and followed with the Widener. He worked a mile over the turf in 1:41 1/5 the other afternoon.

Christ's Concern for the Lost

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL (The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 26 is Luke 15, the Golden Text being Luke 19:10, "The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost.")

THE BIBLE chapter which is the lesson today, is one of the finest in the whole New Testament. In the first place, St. Luke tells us that many publicans and sinners gathered around Jesus. Publicans were the tax gatherers. They were Jews, but collected taxes from their own people for the Romans and were often accused of grafting, keeping money that they should have turned in. The Jews naturally hated them. By sinners it is just possible St. Luke meant miserable outcast men and women.

The Pharisees, who, as we have read before, were always on the watch to trip Jesus so that they might accuse Him of wrong doing, said, "This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them."

Jesus knew what they were thinking, of course, so He told them a parable. "What man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he loses one of them, doth not leave the ninety nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it?"

"And when he hath found it, he calleth together his friends and neighbors, saying unto them, Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost."

Sheep, it is said, if they get lost from the flock, never find their way home like dogs, for instance, do. They "stay lost" unless the shepherd finds them. Sheep are valuable to these shepherds, so it was natural for a shepherd to call his friends together to rejoice with him and celebrate the finding of the lost one.

Joy Over Repentant Sinner "I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance."

He then told them the parable of the woman who, having ten pieces of silver, lost one. She lighted a candle and swept the whole house until she found it; then she, too, called in her friends and neighbors to be glad with her.

"Likewise, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

Next He told the immortal story of the prodigal son. It is one that never grows old. We can hear it again and again and enjoy it and think about what it means to us.

A man, said Jesus, had two sons. The younger one asked his father to give him whatever of money and goods would eventually come to him. The father did so, and a short time afterwards this younger son went to a far land, where he squandered his money on riotous living and at last he began to be in want.

Then a famine rose in that far land, and this son, who had enjoyed a good home with many luxuries, actually suffered hunger, and hired himself out to tend a man's pigs. While he fed the swine he was so hungry that he felt he could even eat the husks which he was feeding to them.

Came To Himself

Then "he came to himself." St. Luke says, and thought about his home and how the servants who worked for his father had plenty to eat, and he decided that while he was unworthy to be received again as a member of the family, he might be hired as a servant.

So "he arose, and came to his father." And when the father saw him coming from far off (it is quite possible he was watching for him and hoping he could see him coming), he ran to meet him, was filled with pity for him and "fell on his neck and kissed him."

"And the son said unto him, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son."

But the father called the servants and told them to kill a fat calf and make a feast to celebrate the son's return.

"For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found."

Now the older son, who had stayed at home and worked with his father all this time, came in from work and heard music and dancing and asked what it meant. On being told he was very angry and would not go in. To his father he said:

"Lo, these many years do I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment; and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends."

Some commentators take the view that this son was very wicked because he felt so, but I think it was a very natural reaction. It is one almost everyone feels when one has worked hard and tried hard to live a good life, and apparently no one particularly appreciates it, while someone who has been idle and shiftless, spending his money and time in fast living, is made much of and seems to get all the good things of life handed to him.

The father's answer was a wise one, and showed he did appreciate his good son, even if he was at the moment rejoicing greatly over the one he had thought lost but who had returned to him repentant.

"Son," he said, "thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine." St. Luke tells us nothing further about this older son. It is quite probable that he smothered his angry feelings and also rejoiced in his brother's return, and went in and joined the merry makers I hope so.

The whole lesson impresses us with the fact that Jesus came to save that which is lost, and how He rejoices when one that seemed lost comes back to His fold.

Christ's Concern for the Lost

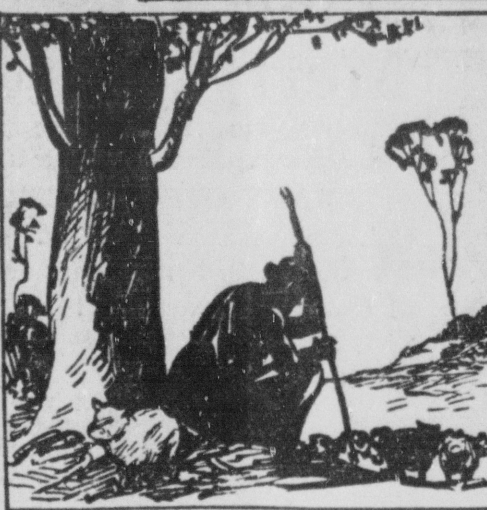

After telling the parable of the lost sheep, Jesus told about the woman, who, having ten pieces of silver, lost one, and swept her whole house until she found it; when she called her friends in to rejoice with her, for she had found what she had lost.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Luke 15.

Then He told of the man who had two sons and the younger came to him and asked for the portion of goods which would come to him. So the father divided the property with them. This younger son therefore went away to a far country.

For a time this younger son lived in luxury, squandering his inheritance, then, when it was all gone, a famine arose in that land, and he was in want, tending a man's swine, and feeling so hungry he would gladly have eaten the husks he fed to them.

At last he arose and went home, thinking that even his father's servants had plenty to eat. His father saw him afar off, went to meet him, kissed him and made a feast, killing a fatted calf, to welcome him home. (GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 19:10)

BUYS PLANE FOR BRITISH

LONDON—A shabby white-haired man walked into a newspaper office at Wellington, New Zealand and asked "Excuse me but how much does a Spitfire cost?" The counter clerk jokingly replied, "Oh, about $25,000—why, would you like to buy one?" "Yes," replied the stranger, and slowly walking over to a writing desk, wrote a check out for $25,000. "Make this contribution anonymous," he remarked, and turning up the collar of his ancient overcoat walked out.

INDUSTRY DOING WELL

OUR present war preparation, as most Americans know by this time, is mainly an industrial problem. And everybody knows how disappointing it is, not to be able to start off with a rush, when we have by far the greatest industrial resources in the world. But the situation is not so bad as it has seemed. Few realize the progress already made.

Writing in Newsweek early this month, Ralph Robey reported that whereas in 1939 the output of our machine-tool industry amounted to $200,000,000, it rose last year to $400,000,000 and this year it will be about $600,000,000. Here will be a growth of 200 percent in two years. Not a bad showing, by any means, in a field which demands greater skill and care than any other big industry.

Even so, these "machines to make machines" haven't had a fair chance to show what they could do when made. For in many branches of the work for which they are intended, the types of products desired have been changing rapidly. Airplane designs and parts are being revised continually, and every such change calls for new machine tooling.

So, the writer concludes, our defense program has not bogged down as far as industry is concerned. We are still going too slowly; but "as compared with what any industrial system has ever done before, our present showing is without parallel and does not warrant current criticism."

LESS NATIONALISM

POLISH Premier Wladislas Sikorski, speaking the other day at the opening of a Polish-British employment office in London, suggested that revision of the term "national sovereignty" would be necessary after the present war. Poland, for example would have to cooperate with neighbor countries to create a block of friendly nation to prevent a repetition of the disasters of the last two years.

There was an effort to create such a block before, but it was completely unsuccessful. Perhaps the trouble was in the interpretation of "national sovereignty." No nation was willing to surrender enough of its own authority to make possible genuine cooperation with others.

If Germany and its allies win the war, the term will cease to exist for the conquered countries. The difference between Hitler's united Europe and the United States of Europe hoped for by others is that in the Nazi system there would be no

NAVY OFFICERS SCORNFUL

WASHINGTON—Behind the scenes in the U. S. Navy there are two schools of thought regarding the danger of war with Japan. Both agree, however, regarding its outcome.

One school, made up of younger officers who have served recently in the Far East, has developed a scorn for Japanese sea power, declares that Japan never has met a first class navy, that annihilation of her fleet would be a matter of two or three months.

They cite especially the Japanese effort to reduce the Woosung forts protecting Shanghai in 1932, when the aim of Japan's big naval guns was so poor that for a while American photographers stood on top of the fortifications taking pictures of the bombardment.

The other school of thought is composed of older officers who are specialists in naval tactics. They have figured out the time necessary to move the fleet from Hawaii, to establish a large enough garrison to protect the Philippines, and to prepare for meeting the Japanese fleet in its own waters. To do all this they want at least a year.

Both groups agree that the United States would come out on top, but they disagree widely on the time required for victory.

DEPEND ON BRITISH

It is extremely important to note that both groups are assuming the British fleet would remain on guard in the Atlantic and the United States would not face the job of protecting Latin America from Hitler—simultaneously with the Japanese attack.

This is one reason why many younger naval officers definitely favor an aggressive policy toward Japan now. They argue that this would be the surest means not only of helping the British, but also of polishing off an almost certain enemy at a time when the Atlantic still is protected.

NOTE—Naval reports indicate that the Japanese are shying away from the idea of invading the Dutch East Indies, despite Nazi urging. One deterrent has been the strong defenses of the Dutch. Another has been significant U. S. naval moves, particularly storing a large supply of torpedo tubes in Hongkong, keeping a large flotilla of submarines at Manila, and concentrating the fleet at Hawaii instead of California.

YOUNG SQUIRT

There was a lot of gay reminiscing at the gathering of the Roosevelt clan for the inaugural ceremonies, and one of the best stories was told by handsome Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who did his first solo campaigning last year and is very proud of it.

During the 1936 contest, he related, while accompanying his father on his Western electioneering tour, it was young Franklin's particular job to appear on the freedom for any national groups. The other ideal would be a development something like the federation of self-governing commonwealths that is the United States of America.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a chilly house and soon learned that my nightly coal pitching had been slighted, so did turn to kindling, old papers and the like and soon had that reluctant furnace roaring. Up, then, to coffee and the morning prints and did read more of the controversy in Washington over the aid to Britain bill. Isn't it grand to be living in a country where men still are permitted to use their heads for something besides targets and where opposition to those more or less temporarily in power does not mean a concentration camp or the firing squad? I think it is.

Out to crank the wagon for the post trip and soon did learn I was iced in, being unable to get away from the curb. But along came Bill Kochensperger and Jay Henry and "two man-power" quickly did a job that the hundred horses under the hood could not accomplish. So, we headed downtown, talking mostly about Winter and its inconveniences. Bill told of a girl who drove toward Columbus for almost two hours and then turned back home at the Hartman farm. Streets in the capital like glass, they said. Many cars in the ditch.

Found little at the post and everything in gear at the plant, leaving me free for a stroll over the business paves. Met Bill Murray, who carries a lot of years extremely well. We stopped to chat and for some reason talked of envy. Bill thinks it is foolish to envy any man and so do I. The times have been and will be again many times when I will wish that I might have the equivalent of another man's possessions, but I don't envy him what he has. News of any man's good fortune or prosperity always brings me happiness, and so says Bill.

Came upon some American Legion members and with them did talk of the post and its possibilities. That organization lists in its membership some of the most prominent and smartest citizens of the village. They all recognize the present need of a patriotic organization such as the Legion. They all wish the post to remain active and be prosperous. Yet, most of the members expect the other fellow to sacrifice his time and each feels little if any personal obligation. That attitude has become so general that the local Legion unit has practically no future at all. The last two scheduled meetings were not held because of lack of quorum. The present officers were promised full support when they agreed to assume duty. They are not getting it and are none too happy about the situation.

In the evening did attend the Rifle Club meeting and there was a quorum there sure enough. Rifles banged all evening and some of those marksmen are good enough to shoot out Hitler's teeth, one at a time. Remained until late and chuckled often at thought of what certainly would happen to parachute troops foolish enough to choose this vicinity for a landing. Did turn home for an inspection of the ice box, finding a cold cut of good beef and a beaker of fine milk. Which one of the dairymen was it who said he would double his advertising allowance if I would just mention his brand here? I could at that, for it is one of the three that I drink.

More About Ductless Glands

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

In two previous articles I have outlined some of the latest researches on the ductless glands. In the first I described some concrete results of the use of ductless gland extracts in human cases.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In the second I pointed out that they preside over the functions of growth, reproduction, subconscious bodily functions and personality.

The pituitary gland, which is close to the base of the brain, has a secretion which conditions the action of all of them. When it is going full speed, they are all going. When it slows down, they all slow down.

The Thyroid Gland

The thyroid, the best known of them because it is subject to the common disease, goiter, which can be recognized even by the man on the street, controls, in general, the rate of our life processes—what is called the basal metabolism. The body, like any engine, produces heat as it operates. When the thyroid whips up to activity, the heat the body produces is increased four or five fold. The heat regulating mechanism of the body is not disturbed, so there is no fever, but the amount of oxygen a person with a certain type of goiter consumes is twice or three times as much as normal. Conversely, if the gland atrophies, the oxygen goes down and the patient feels cold and sluggish.

Here we have two types of variations in the activity of the ductless glands, and in the case of the thyroid, we have complete means of treating them. If the gland is overactive we can rest it, by resting the whole body; we can shrink it with the X-ray, or we can remove it surgically because it is easily accessible. If it is not producing enough secretion we have a potent substitute in thyroid extract which we can feed to the patient in lieu of the absent secretion.

In the case of some of the other glands, we are not quite in such a fortunate strategic position, but more and more as modern research advances, the scientists of the world are producing active extract which exactly take the place of the natural secretions of the glands. Final accomplishment has not yet been reached with the secretion of the pituitary gland, of the adrenal glands, of the gonads, but the preliminary ground has been broken.

Parathyroid Glands

The case of the parathyroid glands is one in point. Those little button-like structures which lie behind the thyroid gland in the neck, have much to do with our happiness and destiny. They control calcium and phosphorus nutrition, which means they have to do with bone growth, teeth, the healing of fractures and so forth. They also have to do with muscular control (which depends on calcium in the blood) and when they go bad, a condition of trembling, called "tetany," comes on. We have now learned how to recognize the degeneration of the parathyroids and we have an active extract of parathyroid secretion. But we have also learned that calcium must be given at the same time, as well as Vitamin D, which seems to stabilize the action of the parathyroid secretion.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

G. W.:—"I have heard that wearing a leather cap will make a person bald-headed. This may appear funny, but I have heard it so often I am beginning to wonder if it is true."

Answer—No, in spite of the rumors to that effect the use of hats or non-use of hats has nothing to do with baldness. Even tightly constructing caps do not cause baldness.

MURDER MAKES A HERO

BY ELLIOTT FILLION
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

WHEN KAYE walked out, "He didn't tell me, Dave, he didn't tell me!" I was trying to puzzle out why, if Dave had tried to get Purple Beeches on the telephone, the call hadn't come through. After I heard Dave and Mark quarreling, I came straight into the house to the library alcove. From there I could hear the telephone bell in the booth every time it rang, or the mumble of a voice whenever it was being used. Kaye and Mark were in the library for some time; later Mark, Jabez, Miss Althea, Janet and I were in the library and, according to Janet and Jabez, someone was in or around that hall booth from the time I went upstairs until 10-22 or three.

I didn't hear the telephone ring or anyone using it, and neither Janet nor Jabez mentioned such a thing. One thing was certain. If Dave had met with him all the evening and used his spare moments to call Kaye, he was positively out of the picture. I was very glad that he was. I like Kaye, though she is a spitfire whose temper runs away with her and has a spiteful streak as well.

"Why do you say that, Kaye?" asked the chief.

Her eyes were flooded with renewed tears.

"If he'd only told me," she wept, "I wouldn't have been out providing around, waiting for Dave. Maybe—maybe—" She could not go on. Down went her head on Dave's shoulder and once more she was shaken by convulsive sobbing.

"Maybe what?" asked the chief patiently.

"Maybe—Mark wouldn't—have been killed." "I still don't understand what you mean." By his tone his patience was wearing thin.

She raised her head. "I'd probably have been with Mark in the library. He might not have been—killed then." Again her sorrow overcame her.

"There is no use sorrowing over what might have been, Kaye." The chief's voice was gentler. "We can only go on now and clear away the wreckage."

Dave soothed and petted Kaye into silence and on that note the detective walked in. He conferred with the chief for some time, then he walked over to Rand, extended a paper toward him and demanded: "What does this mean?"

Rand gave the paper one swift glance. An ugly expression settled over his features.

"What business is it of yours?" he snarled, reaching for the paper which the detective promptly withdrew from his clutching fingers. "Get this through your head now—all of you," Captain Lancy's tone was icy, his eyes forbidding. "Not the tiniest thing is ever overlooked in a murder case. When an explanation is asked for and is not forthcoming, that man or woman is driving one more nail into the coffin."

Today's Horoscope

On the whole, a favorable year is portended for those who are celebrating birthdays today. Financial gain, especially through female and elderly relatives will, however, be accompanied by some annoyance through writings or travel. A child born on this date will exhibit good reasoning powers, and be contemplative, intuitive, practical, steadfast, and of a kindly nature. He or she will be generally fortunate.

Hints on Etiquette

Horoscope for Sunday

Unexpected good fortune and an inclination to romance will be the portion of those who are celebrating birthdays today. They should, however, exercise care in dealing with property, watching expenses on their residences. A highly intellectual and exceptionally scientific and artistic mind will be the gift of the child born on this date. He or she will be especially interested in occult subjects. fin of his or her innocence." "That's my personal business," snarled Rand. "What right have you going through my canceled checks and questioning me dated—how long ago was that?" he demanded; then, without waiting for an answer, he added, "Years ago, anyway."

"When checks are made out to one person over a period of years," snarled the detective, "and for no apparent reason, Banks tell us this man hasn't worked for you since he came to Rand House ten years ago; when across one of the checks is written the words 'Damn him' and written with such force that the paper is torn by the pen; when, in addition, the maker of the check refuses to answer a simple question—" Grimly the detective looked around the room.

Proctor sprang from his seat and crossed to his father's side.

"Let me see that check," said the detective did not immediately comply with Proctor's demand, he turned to his father.

"What's the matter with you?" he asked. "Why don't you tell the cop what he wants to know. You're acting like an absolute fool."

Thus caustically criticized, Rand lifted his eyes to his son's.

"It's one of Wing's checks," he said bitterly.

"Well, for heaven's sake, Dad, what's biting you? If you've been good enough to pay a man for years because he hurt his back while working for you, I can't see that that's so criminal. That's the story," he went on, turning to Captain Lancy. "You can't blame dad for being sore; he's always felt Bill Wing was holding him up, but he couldn't prove it—so—" He spread his hands in a hopeless gesture.

Bill Wing! Johnny's father! So that accounted for the money which enabled him to live without working. The mystery of the fishing village was explained into a most prosaic explanation. You couldn't blame Rand for being sore if he felt that Wing was claiming compensation for an injury he had not received or from which he had recovered.

"Liberal compensation I'd say," commented the detective dryly. "One hundred dollars a month for 16 years, according to the date on an earlier check!" He looked sharply at Proctor; but his explanation was a glub as before.

"I wouldn't say it was too liberal," he replied. "Wing was an able-bodied seaman. He could get from sixty to eighty dollars a month on a ship. He drifted back here 16 or 17 years ago, saw the Essex's maid and lost his head over her. She wouldn't marry a sailor, so he hunted around for other work. Dad hired him, he was a good worker, and—when he hurt his back, couldn't ever go back to sea again—dad felt it was only fair to take care of him."

"Then why the 'Damn him'?" queried the detective.

"Because a few years ago dad found that he was being gypped.

He—"

"He threatened to, but Wing said he'd sue if the money wasn't stumped up. You ought to know what juries are, always against a man with money. The fact that dad had paid all these years would look as though he felt morally obligated to do so. What logical reason could he give then for stopping payment now when Wing was that much older and, according to him, still unable to work. He might have hooked dad for an even bigger amount if it came to trial. I advised him to keep on paying, so he has."

"There's something in that," admitted Captain Lancy. "Suppose while you're talking you tell us just what you were doing while your father was in Hyannis and Mark Gould was being done to death."

"After dinner I talked with dad until quarter past eight, when he left for Hyannis; his appointment was for nine o'clock there. I went up to my shop after that and puttered around with some new stuff I'm working on. I didn't come downstairs but once until I heard dad drive in, and I don't know what time that was. I happened to remember about that flat I 'ad afternoon. I'd forgotten to tell the chauffeur, but sometimes he looks the spares over and I wondered if he'd done so this afternoon. I went out to the garage; his quarters are over it, but no such luck, he hadn't noticed it. There was nothing I could go about it then; so I went back to the shop. I didn't come down again until I heard dad drive in, and then he was already phoning Cary. He said there had been an accident here, and Irene and I came over with him to help if we could."

"Anybody see you when you went out or in on that jaunt to the garage?"

"I don't think so. Banks might have seen me, but I didn't see him. I heard Irene gabbling over the phone as usual, but that's all."

"As a matter of fact," replied the detective, "Banks did see you go out. It was then a quarter of ten. He did not see you return and was surprised when you came downstairs to join your father."

"Checking up on me, were you?" demanded Proctor, with what he probably considered a wise smile.

"What do you think?" was the curt reply.

The chief and the detective talked together for some time, after which the chief left the room. When he returned there was another consultation; then he said:

"At this stage of affairs, I am not accusing anyone, but none of you are to leave your homes without my permission. Cary Essex, David Oils, Horace and Proctor Rand each had an equal opportunity to shoot Mark Gould."

An interesting program arranged for the evening by Miss Ethyl May, the new lecturer, was presented.

Byron Bolender, worthy master, opened the grange in ritualistic form and conducted the business session. It was announced that the meeting set for February 14 would be omitted, the next regular grange meeting to be held February 28. Conflict with church activities in the community is the reason for the postponement.

"My Old Kentucky Home" was the opening song by the grangers. Mrs. M. M. Bowman and Mrs. Ralph DeLong entertained the grangers with a vocal duet, "Old Black Joe," and Mrs. Boyd Stout with a poem, "Our Grange." Other numbers planned for the program were omitted because of illness in the community.

The grangers participated in lively games during the pleasant social hour.

FEW GIRLS do a stroke of hair-care work. If they use the brush it is only to arrange smooth rolls and pretty ringlets. It is a crying shame. Grooming the brain mat is necessary for its well being. We don't care whether or not the hair grows any more, since it is sheared just as often, but we desire to keep what we have and we want it to look live and glisteny. Why let the poor little halo go along by itself? Why not give it a brushing now and then?

The brush is a first class renovator, removing surface dust. It smokes out dead shafts; as a silky thread lives from two to seven years, some are moulting every day. The gentle tugs at the roots exercise the tiny fibers that surround the bulbous end, stimulate the capillaries in the papilla in which the root rests.

Daily Brushing

Hair that gets a rousing brushing once a day—or even several times a week—is better humored than locks that are neglected. It falls into pleasing undulations and stays put. It never assumes that scrambled appearance that is so terrible to behold, and which we see all too often.

After the brushing have a five minute scalp massage, lifting and pinching the flesh until it glows. Sunshine and fresh air also will help the luster of your halo, when taken in moderate doses. Of course you don't want to burn your hair to a crisp under a broiling summer sun, unless you like the strawstack type of hairdo.

But smart girls know that when they dry their hair in the sunshine after a shampoo, it has a special sheen and softness. The sunshine and fresh air idea is one of the main points of some of the new "half-hats" and wide mesh nets that are being shown for recent wear now and summer wear later.

One of the neatest tricks of the week is a net bordered with a wreath of flowers that you clap over your tresses. The effect is both decorative and practical. The

Personals

Mrs. E. F. Delaplaine, 345 East Main Street, and Miss Nell Welton, 211 South Scioto Street, plan to leave Monday for Florida where they will sojourn for several weeks. They will spend some time in Miami, where Mrs. Delaplaine's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Delaplaine, and their family reside.

Miss Hazel Chilcote of Saltcreek Township was a Friday shopper in Circleville.

Mrs. Frank Bowling Jackson Township was a Circleville shopping visitor Friday.

Miss Besse Creager of Stoutsville shopped in Circleville Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Barnhart of Northridge Road will spend the week end with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Barnes, of Akron.

Miss Jane Littleton of Morrill is spending the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Littleton, North Pickaway Street.

Mrs. O. T. Leist returned Friday to her home in Williamsport after a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Shook of 208 North Court Street.

net holds the hair in place, so that you may ride in an open roadster or skim the waves in a surfboard, with nary a hair disturbed.

Also the open mesh allows the scalp to breathe, and invites the ultra-violet rays, all of which is planned for the health, happiness and general well-being of your hair.

Nail biting, due to nervousness, is a horrid, untidy habit. Bacteria lurk under even the cleanest nails, are always ready for business, giving one the sniffles or putting one out of form by some other painful means.

Nibbling is due to rough nail edges or hang nails. The cure is found in scrupulous care of the pink sheaths plus a professional manicure once a week. Keep the little claws in first class condition. Every day run an orange wood stick under the cuticle to detach it from the nail fabric; then hang-nails will not torment you.

INTER-CLASS B. B.
WILL CONTINUE

Intramural basketball ran into its fourth set Friday.

Schedule played was:

Eighth grade vs. Sophomore Wildcats.

Seventh grade vs. Freshmen Bullets.

Freshmen Shamrocks vs. Sophomore Comets.

Due to game time conflicting with the editing of the Red and Black, scores were not obtained. They will be published in next week's edition.

At present, the Sophomore Wildcats lead the league.

Mr. Thomas Armstrong, assistant coach, stated that intramural basketball will continue until the weather permits teams to change to baseball.

As has been the custom previously, the second assistant, Wanda Grabill, will move up to first assistant and the editor will appoint a second assistant to succeed her.

Ann Hott was appointed by Walter to the position of second assistant. She will be the editor of this publication for the last six weeks of the school year.

Marvne Hennessy will replace Ann Hott in the position of exchange editor.

Junior Class To Present Play

C. H. S. SCHOLARS
HAVE DIFFERENT
ENTERTAINMENTS

During the past week the student body and faculty enjoyed two assembly programs.

On Monday at 8:30 a pay assembly was presented by Samuel Grathwell, who is associated with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D. C. Mr. Grathwell spoke on crime and criminals, and their detection.

At 10:30 Wednesday morning Frank Fischer, superintendent, introduced Clarence Sorenson, a foreign correspondent for the Columbia broadcasting company. Mr. Sorenson, who has traveled over the world extensively, described some of his experiences during these travels and "warned" the audience against becoming foreign correspondents.

He talked mainly upon the reliability of newspaper reports and radio broadcasts concerning the present war in Europe.

He pointed out several steps in ascertaining the truth of certain reports concerning the war. Briefly they are: 1. Read more than head lines and listen to more than news bulletins. 2. Check the sources of material whenever possible. Unless it is an eye-witness account most reports are inclined to be somewhat past the truth.

4. Forget the cartoons for they are only editorials. 5. Sift out the color words in the stories. 6. If possible read with an X-ray mind. He said that if readers observed these rules many false reports would not circulate.

His talk was one of a series to be presented by the Rotary Institute of Understanding.

SENIOR RESERVE TO HOLD LUNCH

Have you heard about the jitney lunch the Senior Girl Reserves are sponsoring next Tuesday? Everyone who attends this affair will have a grand time and plenty to eat—providing his nickel supply is ample.

In order that the girls will know how much food to prepare, all those who wish to go to the lunch are requested to purchase a ticket before January 28 because Monday is the last day that tickets will be sold.

A ticket entitles the holder to enter the gym, where the jitney lunch will be held, and it also secures one five-cent purchase.

Margaret Boggs and her committee will be selling these tickets in all home rooms in the morning and afternoon on Monday. Don't neglect purchasing a ticket; it is important so that the Girl Reserves will know how many will attend their lunch, and also so that you can be there.

Food will include johnnycakes, various kinds of sandwiches, fruit salad, ice cream bars, candy and beverages. No article will exceed the five-cent price.

Remember your nickel on Monday for a ticket to the Senior Girl Reserve jitney lunch!

CLUB MEETING POSTPONED

Because of conflicting events, the Poetry Club meeting, Friday, was postponed until next week.

On January 31 the program will concern "The Life and Work of John Keats" with Rose Anne Griner and Mary Adele Snider in charge. This program is part of the club's study of the poets of the Romantic Age.

In two weeks, Helen Beck and Lena Webbe will present a program on "Shelley and Byron."

EDITORIAL

Doubtless everyone of us has heard some type of music, whether it was "Tin Pan Alley swing" or fine pieces of classical music played by sympathy orchestras, but I wonder how many of us have ever stopped to ponder and question the origin of the word "music."

Let's delve into the depths of ancient history and seek our answer. We find that it comes from a Greek word which means "the art of the Muses"—the mythological goddesses of inspiration.

Music has been a source of inspiration to man since the dawn of history and makes him see the brighter side of life. It catches him in his every mood—sadness, joy, anger.

Take for instance a number of tired weary men marching together to accomplish something as a group. Lines of discouragement and despair are etched in their faces. They have been tramping so long now that hope is almost a thing of the past. But listen—in the distance the clear notes of a marching band breaks through the air. Faces brighten up and steps quicken. Again music has taken them by the hand and inspired them to reach their goal—and may they attain it!

Would dancing and the newly acquired fad of roller skating be complete without music? No, for when we hear music all cares and worries fall from us as if swept away by a giant current of wind and we get into the spirit of graceful movements.

Just as different types of music can inspire moods so may the various kinds of musical instruments and the way they are played. For example, we hear the beating notes of a drum and what do we do? Our feet start tapping out a melody and first thing we know we are "swinging" out on a jitterbug step. There isn't any sadness written on the faces of our neighboring partners now. No cares or worries mar their countenances for the time being and they think of nothing except dancing to the rhythm of the music.

SPRING FESTIVAL
MUSIC RECEIVED;
PRACTICE BEGINS

Recently C. F. Zaenglein, director of instrumental music in the high school, received the selections that the band will play at the annual spring festival. Upon receiving the music Mr. Zaenglein began immediate rehearsal in preparation for this "much looked for" event.

Instead of distributing all the numbers to the musicians at one time, Mr. Zaenglein "gave out" three selections which the band has been practicing on. The three are: March, the Billboard, Rival Overture, and Espana Waltz.

Also in preparation for the coming festival, Mr. Zaenglein is conducting a special group every Thursday evening after school. From this group he will select the individual or individuals who will represent Circleville in the solo part of the program.

As yet no one has been chosen to fill these positions, but Mr. Zaenglein said that a selection would be made shortly so that they might begin preparing themselves for the occasion.

HI-Y TO ATTEND
CHURCH IN BODY

Because the flu epidemic interfered with plans previously made last week, the members of the Hi-Y Club did not attend church last Sunday. They are attending St. Joseph's tomorrow.

Special Hi-Y meeting was held Monday afternoon the last period in order that the boys could use the regular meeting time to study for the examinations.

During the meeting it was disclosed that the dance the Hi-Y members had planned to give the girls last night could not be held. Friday morning the jackets, which the club had ordered to distinguish themselves, arrived. These jackets are black trimmed with red.

TESTS GIVEN

On Wednesday and Thursday of this week the semester was brought to a close with semester tests. A schedule was arranged so that no tests conflicted. Tests were made out to last for an hour and a half. Those who did not have tests were asked to remain away from the school.

Results of the tests will be placed on the report cards, to come out on Wednesday, and averaged in with all the six weeks grades at the end of the year.

SPEECH TEACHER
AND COMMITTEE
MAKE SELECTION

During the past week Samuel R. Johnson and seven members of the junior class of Circleville high school have been considering plays which this class will produce soon.

Six plays were considered by this committee consisting of Glenn Barnhart, Margaret Boggs, Miriam Brown, William Burget, Dorothy Cook, Janet Funk and Robert Kline. These plays are: "Little Women", "Jo's Boys", "Mollie O'Shaughnessy", "The Vampire Bat", "The Valiant One" and "Going Places".

After careful consideration the selection narrowed to three, "Little Women", "Mollie O'Shaughnessy" and "The Vampire Bat".

Because of certain deficiencies in the lighting arrangement of the high school auditorium it is believed by Mr. Johnson that "The Vampire Bat" could not be produced successfully. Since this particular play has a plot which contains mystery and intrigue, the lacking of proper lighting effects would subtract from the general interest of the play pointed out Mr. Johnson.

"If the proper facilities can be acquired," he goes on to say, "the play would probably go over well, because it is different." However, it was believed that no reostat, which is the needed instrument, is available in Circleville.

This narrows the selection to "Little Women" and "Mollie O'Shaughnessy." The latter is a rip-roaring saga of the Old West. There is a "downright" onery villain, a hero and a fair young damsel-in-distress as in all Westerns but the plot and general theme of the play is entirely different.

If all the properties could be acquired this would also be a good production, but there seems to be a scarcity of the most vital of the properties of any Western story, the infallible "six-gun."

"Little Women", the other alternative, the immortal classic of Louisa Mae Alcott, may be the final choice. Its quaint costumes, its lovable characters and its interesting plot will always be enjoyed by young or old regardless of the number of times that one sees it.

Mr. Johnson announced that as soon as the final selection was made, casting would begin. And following the casting immediate production would begin.

Each year the junior class presents a play for the approval and amusement of the residents of our community. The proceeds of this play go toward the annual Junior-Senior banquet.

At the time our copy went to press, the final selection had not been made.

No doubt next week these columns will carry a review of the play selected and possibly the cast chosen.

—Beat Wilmington—

PRACTICE BEGINS
ON NEW NUMBER

"Spirit of the Age", an Overture by Henry Fillmore, was distributed to members of the C. H. S. orchestra at their weekly rehearsal Tuesday afternoon. C. F. Zaenglein announced at that time this would be the overture which would be used for commencement exercises in the spring.

It has been the custom of the orchestra to play a new overture each year at the graduation exercises. The members of the orchestra are given the selection which they are to play about this time each year and they begin earnest practice on the piece.

These musicians have also been engaged for the Junior class play which will be pre-ented in the near future. The orchestra is also working new numbers which they will present at that time.

PERIOD ENDS

Friday was the last day in the third six weeks' grading period of this year. Next Wednesday pupils will receive their regular grade cards which will contain this period's grades together with semester exam grades.

Regular Red and Black honor roll will be published next week.

Program Completed For Annual Joint Farm Meet

Plans for the annual joint meeting of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau and the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association were completed Saturday and invitations sent to all Pickaway County members.

The meeting, to be held in Memorial Hall, will open at 1 o'clock with annual reports and election of directors for both organizations to be considered during the afternoon business session.

Miss Ida Pruitt, who is touring the United States in the interest of the Chinese Industrial Cooperatives, will be the principal speaker of the afternoon, with special music furnished by a novelty trio consisting of Norma Jean Hines, Ada Lou Beckett and Mary Virginia Baum.

The evening banquet, also to be held in Memorial Hall, will begin at 6:45 p. m. with a turkey dinner being served by the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion.

Dr. Felix E. Held, Ohio State University, will be main speaker of the evening. Harold Hoover and Phillip Reichelderfer, 1940 4-H club winners in the livestock show, and sent to the Chicago International Livestock Exposition by Circleville industries, will relate their experiences while attending the show.

Music during the evening will be furnished by the Grange orchestra under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Reber, with Mrs. Lena Metzger Maass also providing musical selections. Recreation and musical games for the young people will follow the banquet.

S. E. Beers, secretary of the Farm Bureau and C. E. Dick, secretary of the Livestock Association are in charge of the program.

Washington Merry-Go Round

back platform to greet the crowds that assembled at small town stops late at night in the hope of seeing the President. One night Franklin was routed out of bed to say a few words to a gathering of farmers and ranchers at an isolated Montana way stop.

Bundled in his bathrobe, he was in the midst of a polite expression of regret that his father was unable to appear when an elderly woman, sitting in a horse-drawn buggy, piped up in a loud voice:

"Say, who is that young squirt up there? I rode 38 miles to see the President of the United States and I want to see him. Where is Mr. Coolidge?"

COUNCIL FOR AMERICA
A new organization to be known as the Council for America will soon be launched to rally public sentiment behind the President's foreign and defense policies.

Leaders of the movement are prominent liberals whose aim is to bring together labor, farmer, literary and similar groups into a militant organization to oppose the activities of the America First Committee and other isolationist units.

The Council for America will not be a rival of the Committee for the Defense of America by Aiding the Allies, but will work along similar lines through elements not reached by it.

The plan is to launch the new organization publicly on Lincoln's birthday with a nationally broadcast address by Mayor LaGuardia in Kansas City, or some other Midwest metropolis.

Among those interested in the new movement is Mrs. Dwight Morrow, mother-in-law of Colonel Charles Lindbergh.

CRACKING PEACE FRONT
Meanwhile, the isolationist front of the strongly pacifist Women's International League for Peace and Freedom is cracking.

Miss Emily Balch, one of the revered founders of the organization, has tendered her resignation from the executive board because she disapproves of the anti-British aid stand of Miss Dorothy Detzer, secretary of the League and one of the most effective lobbyists in Washington.

Miss Balch is not the only League leader who is up in arms over Miss Detzer's views and her undercover brain-trusting of the Washington isolationists. Eastern, Southern and Far Western branches also have voiced sharp opposition, and the inside word is that a showdown on foreign policy will soon be forced within the organization.

REDUCED LIGHT RATES TO BE EFFECTIVE ON BILLS DUE FEBRUARY 1

NEW ORDINANCE PUT IN EFFECT BY UTILITY FIRM

One Cent Drop In Initial Bracket Provided In New Statute

Circleville residential and commercial light users will receive the benefit of a rate reduction made by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. in bills received February 1 for current used in January. The rate change, scheduled to take place June 30, has been moved up six months as part of an agreement reached between council and the utility company when a rate controversy was ended last fall.

The utility company, Saturday, declared that a reduction in rates would take place in most of its southern districts, the reduction applying to Circleville, Athens, Chillicothe, Delaware, Gallipolis, Hillsboro and Middleport where the top rate for lighting drops from six cents to five cents per kilowatt hour for the first block of energy used.

In five of these cities the reduction at this time is provided by existing ordinances, but the company is putting the reduction in effect in Circleville and Middleport ahead of the dates specified in their ordinances.

The rate in effect now will prevail until June 30, 1947, it being part of a 10 year contract voted by a previous council.

The new ordinance calls for five cents for each of the first 60 kilowatts, four cents for each of the next 40, three cents for each of the next 100 and two cents for all over 200. The new commercial rate will be five cents for each of the first 100 kw. hour, four cents for each of the next 400, three cents for each of the next 500, and one-half cents for the next 1,500 and two cents for each kw. over 2,500.

"Over the last decade the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company has made several rate reductions and has worked constantly toward the establishment of a uniform rate structure over its southern district," said S. M. Haffey, district manager. "Naturally," he added, "increasing use of energy by consumers has been an important factor in securing lower rates. The residence customer average use in 1940 was approximately 55 kilowatt hours per month. Ten years ago the average cost of 55 kilowatt hours in Athens, Chillicothe, Circleville, Delaware, Gallipolis, Hillsboro and Middleport was $4.91. With the latest reduction in rates, the uniform cost of 55 kilowatt hours in all of these cities is $2.75, a reduction of $2.16, or 43.99 percent."

Illustrative of the state of mind of Britain's speculative populace was the fact that a minor sensation was caused by a "mysterious odor" in the Dover-Folkestone area. Penetrating 15 miles inland, it resembled the smell of crude oil. Many people telephoned the police, seeking an explanation.

But no explanation was forthcoming, since there was no report of any tanker having foundered off that section of the coast.

Further illustrative of Britain's state of mind was the fact that Dover weather reports once more are appearing regularly in the newspapers.

BRITISH MENACE NEW DISTRICTS

British troops also swept into Ethiopia for the first time, it was claimed. Striking from the south, they broke through Italian border fortifications from Kenya Colony, dispatches said.

And far to the north two more British columns driving toward the Red Sea pushed more than 85 miles into Italian Eritrea in hot pursuit of fleeing Italian troops, it was reported, while still other British forces pushed into the Italian Red Sea colony of Somaliland.

In Libya the hard-charging Anglo-Australian forces were understood to have seized Italian airdromes at Bomba, Timini and Gazala.

Determined to recapture Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital from which he was driven by Premier Mussolini's legions five years ago, Haile Selassie re-entered his native land from the Sudan and assumed command over the fierce tribesmen of his British-equipped army.

He journeyed hundreds of miles into the mysterious Abyssinian interior to a secret headquarters, prepared for him in advance by intrepid British officers. His arrival was the signal for attacks on Fascist strongholds around Lake Tana.

In Libya, as the British campaign to bite off Cyrenaica developed, RAF planes poured explosives and incendiaries on Derna and bombed barracks at the Apollonia airdrome.

Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander of the British army of the Nile, toured fallen Tobruk and saw many of the 20,000 or more Italian soldiers captured there being counted prior to transfer to prison camps in Egypt.

BULGARIAN AND SOVIET BORDER REGIONS CLOSED

Romania Acts To Prevent Iron Guardists From Reaching Freedom

Assassin Overpowered Reports received in Budapest and Belgrade told a bloody story of the four days of Romanian rebellion, during which insurgent Iron Guardists killed and plundered, burned down factories and even staged an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Antonescu, who personally overpowered his assailant.

Among the thousands of dead, it was reported, were 2,000 Iron Guard legionnaires. Between 3,000 and 4,000 others were wounded in the fighting that spread from one end of blood-purged Romania to the other.

(Editor's Note: A dispatch from Bucharest said that after Antonescu declared himself leader of the Iron Guardists, replacing Sima, the premier demanded that workers and officials resume their regular tasks at once. He ordered authorities to crush insurgents wherever they are "still resisting.")

(Antonescu in a proclamation blamed the uprising on "certain incompatible, incorrect and completely inhuman elements of the state service.")

How complete Antonescu's control of the situation has become remained a matter of doubt. One report from Belgrade said insurgents still appeared to be resisting in Transylvania and Moldavia.

In these provinces and other sections, when the fighting was at its height, dispatches stated, the wildly rioting Iron Guardists extensively looted Jewish sections of Bucharest and other Romanian cities.

Dozens of factories were burned to the ground as the orgy of destruction and bloodshed spread like a flame.

The attempt to assassinate Antonescu was said to have occurred January 21. On that day an unidentified man, in the uniform of a Bucharest foreign office usher, forced his way into Antonescu's home and demanded that the premier go immediately to the foreign office.

As soon as the premier appeared, this version said, the "usher" started shooting. But Antonescu leaped aside and then attacked his assailant, overpowering him with the aid of a servant. The would-be assassin was arrested.

German Officer Escapes Yesterday afternoon another "sniper" was said to have shot at—but missed—a German officer in a Bucharest street. The previous killing of a German general staff officer, Major Doehring, was the event that precipitated the rebellion.

In yesterday's incident a German motorized unit rescued the officer. But no further shots were fired and the gunman apparently escaped.

Fighting which continued in Romania yesterday was climaxed with arrival of Romanian troop reinforcements in Bucharest from the provinces. With the capital a virtual armed camp, Romanian army corps commanders vowed their loyalty to Antonescu, and in radio broadcasts urged the population to surrender all arms and ammunition to authorities.

Last night, however, many Iron Guardists refused to relinquish their arms and local skirmishing continued at many points. Antonescu was said to have ordered immediate execution of any private citizen found in possession of weapons.

The Bucharest radio constantly broadcast instructions to the population to denounce Iron Guardists hiding from troops, and warned that any person aiding insurgents to escape would be shot. "I will punish rebels with a broken heart but with firm determination," Antonescu declared in one radio broadcast.

EX-ENVOY CALLS PRECEDENT SET BY ROOSEVELT ON CONGRESS TO VOTE AID BILL

90 Percent Of World To Be Against America In Case Of Axis Victory

Canal Vulnerable Bullitt pictured the Panama Canal as vulnerable. He said:

"The elimination of the British navy and control of either the Atlantic or Pacific by a totalitarian navy would be the signal for totalitarian government to be installed in one or more states of Latin America. The movement of totalitarian control toward the Panama Canal would be rapid."

"The experience of cities in England has shown that it is impossible to prevent bombardment of the Panama Canal by planes based on the northern portion of South America, or on Central America, or aircraft carriers."

"If the Panama Canal should be closed by bombardment from the air or sabotage, our one-ocean navy would be fixed in one ocean and the other ocean would become a pathway for invasion."

The day's witnesses were to include Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, minister to Norway, who fled before the German "blitzkrieg"; Gen. John F. O'Ryan of New York, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor; Dorothy Thompson, writer, and William L. Shirer, recently a Berlin correspondent.

Rep. Fish, N. Y., Republican leader on the committee, voiced satisfaction with the testimony against the "lend-lease" bill, while Democratic committee leaders appeared equally satisfied.

One of the last opposition witnesses—former Undersecretary of State William R. Castle—agreed with predictions of Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox that there might be a crisis in England in 60 to 90 days.

May Sue for Peace "It appears that England might be brought to a negotiated peace in 60 to 90 days," said Castle.

As the opposition's case closed, some legislation designed to provide further aid to England was certain to be reported to the house. Virtually all opponents of the bill—and virtually all committee opponents of the "lend-lease" bill—agreed that further aid should be extended.

Republican sentiment veered behind a program which would authorize a loan or gift of $2,000,000,000 to Great Britain, thus giving her complete freedom to continue heavy purchases of planes and munitions in this country.

Spokesmen for the program, endorsed by many opposition witnesses, contended that this would remove the probability of the United States becoming involved in war.

Administration leaders, however, insisted that broad discretionary power must be lodged in the President.

axis power threat by steaming across the Atlantic into the guarded reaches of Chesapeake Bay.

Lord Halifax lost no time in stating the aims and hopes of his beleaguered government last night when he stepped off the presidential yacht in the glaring blaze of newsreel flares. He said:

"I have come here as a member of the war cabinet serving as His Majesty's ambassador to make known to the government and people of the United States from time to time in what way, if they are willing, they can best give the help we need."

"The more quickly your help can be made effective the sooner we shall be able to break this Nazi power that is trying to enslave Europe and the world."

Precedent Lacking

Historians dug in vain for a precedent to mark President Roosevelt's move in personally leaving the White House and motoring 35 miles to Annapolis, there boarding his own yacht to cruise some five miles out to greet and escort back to the national capital the new ambassador of a beligerent power.

While the battleship King George was shuttling into Chesapeake Bay and the White House yacht departed from the U. S. Naval Academy to contact it, patrol boats from both naval and coast guard services scurried alertly about keeping a close eye on all merchant shipping in the vicinity.

President Roosevelt motored to Annapolis in a cold rain that reduced visibility to a low range in company with Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, Major General Edwin M. Watson, White House secretary and military aide, and Captain Daniel J. Callaghan, naval aide.

Also present at the Annapolis Roads rendezvous to meet Britain's erstwhile foreign secretary, who succeeds the late Lord Lothian, were ranking officials of the British embassy and the Canadian and Australian legations.

The January meeting of the local Parent-Teacher Association was held Thursday evening and an average crowd attended. Safety was the theme of this meeting and Mayor Hines was on hand to conduct a discussion on the subject.

He spoke of the town's traffic regulations, traffic lights and the "easy way of life" of the modern generation. Several people in the audience joined in the discussion, vis: Mr. Swayer, Mr. Harbough, Mrs. W. A. Bowers, Mr. Carter and Mr. Higley. Mr. Cecil Scott answered a question about the traffic light at the intersection near the school. A highway patrolman was present and gave a talk on the subject, after which a discussion was held.

Through the efforts of A. W. Graham, a motion picture was shown in technicolor and its title was "Power Behind The Nation". The picture concerned coal and showed how it is mined, transported (land, and water), and how it is used.

Next meeting will be held sometime in February.
